

3 myths about school education

There is nothing more important than children, and therefore it is not surprising that every conscious parent wants to give their child all the best that his life was happy and prosperous. But in the hectic days we make mistakes and pay for them with currency that will never return – time. Let's look at what are the myths about school hinder us in educating your child.

1. Teachers in addition to the lessons not doing anything

Many people that have nothing to do with education, have the wrong idea about the specifics of teachers ' work. It seems that in addition to the lessons they may have a minimum of work like filling of the magazine and check notebooks. But in fact the lessons are only 30% of the load. Teachers regularly participate in conferences, study courses, listen to webinars, doing research activities, conduct open lessons, etc. That is engaged in activity which takes a lot of time and effort. But because in fact 6 classes a day does not mean freedom. It is only then that starts another activity. Therefore, coming to meet the teacher after class, keep in mind that he may have right now got to get to a meeting, and tomorrow he open class. So appreciate the time in your busy schedule is devoted to you and your child. It is also worth to consider, when you hope the teacher assigns each student a lot of time and provides the ultimate in protection and support.

2. The school is required to raise a child

Of course, education is one of components of work with children, but a reasonable approach to the issue suggests that if a child isn't brought up at home, not taught to follow the main rules of life in society, college research paper writing service for a 45 minute lesson the teacher can do little to change. In addition, if you regularly criticise teachers at home and the child hears it (they hear everything and always), then should we expect that there will be any effect of teachers ' comments about the fact that you can't fight with the classmates and spit them into the portfolios? Do not force your child to blink in bewilderment when he was in school forced to explain how to behave, and tell him this sooner and in a more friendly form. It will protect it from unnecessary conflict and guide on the right path in the development of.

3. School education ensures a solid and comprehensive knowledge

Even if your school is the best in town, and teachers with a wealth of experience and talents, we should not forget that the collective form of learning, and the curriculum can't be 100% effective and will satisfy your wildest requests. Education, like education, rests on the shoulders of parents and it depends on you success in the future: a prestigious University, well-paid job. Therefore do not waste your time and try now to invest in the development of the child funds. Tutors, various mugs and sections will provide an opportunity to develop in many directions and, importantly, a busy schedule prevents the child from negative influences of peers whose parents are not too concerned about their future.

The conclusion is clear. Do not expect school education fantastic results. Don't waste time in the hope that someone will educate and prepare them for the lives of your children better than you do.
